

EARTH ANGEL STUDIO

For many of us, the pandemic both closed and opened doors. For Alahna Parker, the founder and owner of Earth Angel Studio, it broke her open. A natural and self-educated healer on her own journey of self-love and awareness, she created a space for “people from all walks of life to come together in love, peace and abundance; to celebrate their [truest selves] and discuss things they did not feel safe discussing in their [other] social circles – they became family.”

Earth Angel offers holistic products and healing services, such as virtual breath work, guided meditations, reiki, tarot readings, and one-on-one coaching in numerology, astrology, and chakra balancing. It is a place for anyone in need of self-soothing techniques to combat depression and anxiety, especially communities traditionally underserved in these services.

As a Black woman and veteran herself, Parker knows first-hand the power that human connection and community has on the path to wellness and healing. “This platform was built in 2020 for those seeking a community based on love, kindness, awareness, and healthy lifestyle choices. It was both a beautiful time for business and a challenging time spiritually. We had to learn to trust the human connection all over again. We had to prioritize mental health and accept the fact that mental health is a major component of overall health.” With the support of WWBIC and other organizations like it, Earth Angel will continue to grow and evolve, building and contributing not only to its community’s health and well-being but also, its wealth.

“WWBIC is a great organization to be involved with if you want to make a real impact.”
